

LOGLINE

Late 1970s, Florida. Immigrant fisherman Boris challenges the ruthless Boss who controls a river settlement, sparking a rebellion that puts the woman he loves and an entire community in danger.

SYNOPSIS

Near Jacksonville, fishermen live by the Boss’s rules. He decides who works, who sells their catch, and who survives. Everyone knows the price of defiance.

Boris finds an independent buyer, proving that the men can escape the Boss’s control. With Eric and unexpected allies, he begins to unite the fishermen. But the Boss answers resistance with intimidation and violence.

As Sofia, the woman Boris loves, becomes entangled in the struggle, his fight turns deeply personal. Boris must choose between protecting those closest to him and confronting a man determined to keep his power. The river community faces the same choice: remain silent, or risk everything together.

PROJECT STATUS

Published novel • Completed feature screenplay
Pitch deck ready • Production development package prepared

WRITER / CREATOR

Alex Avetis

Author • Screenwriter

CONTACT

alexavetis.com

info@alexavetis.com

“Fear survives
when everyone believes
they are alone.”

HISTORICAL CRIME DRAMA

Late 1970s • Florida

CHARACTER-DRIVEN. EMOTIONALLY POWERFUL. UNIVERSAL.